

November 2017

Dear Parents and Carers,

I am pleased to offer your son/ daughter a fantastic opportunity to see ‘Woman in Black’ by Susan Hill at the Fortune theatre.

As part of the GCSE Drama curriculum students are strongly encouraged to see a range of live theatre pieces. They will also have to write a theatre review inline with the EDEXCEL GCSE drama syllabus.

For some of the students this performance will also aid them with their English GCSE as ‘woman in black’ is one of the set texts they will have studied.

The cost of the trip will be £21.50 which covers the price of the ticket at a reduced rate because we are a school party. Travel to the theatre and back to school will be provided free of charge.

The location of the performance is at the Fortune theatre, in the west end on Thursday 11 January 2018. We will be leaving school at 2pm meaning students will not miss their lunch time. We will then be returning to school at 5:30pm. We will be travelling via the London Underground.

As we will be seated with members of the general public watching live theatre I would urge you to help me in reminding students about our expectations of behaviour in the theatre. Use of mobile phones or distracting behaviour such as talking during the performance will not be tolerated by theatre staff and could result in offenders being ask to leave the theatre during the performance. Any incidents such as these will also be followed up inline with the school's attitude to learning policy.

Payment for this trip needs to be made in the form of cash/cheque only which is brought to Student Window. Students will then be issued with a receipt. No payment should be given to Miss Cusack or form tutors.
