

November 2017

Dear Parents and Carers,

I am pleased to offer your son/daughter a fantastic opportunity to see 'The Woman in Black' by Susan Hill at the Fortune Theatre - London's West End - on Thursday 11 January 2018. We will be leaving school at 2pm meaning students will not miss their lunch time. We will then be returning to school at 5:30pm with both legs of the journey conducted via London Underground.

The novel of 'The Woman In Black' is a core text for GCSE English Literature and the play version is an invaluable revision tool in preparation for the final exams next summer.

For some of the students this performance will also aid them with their Drama GCSE as 'The Woman In Black' live performance can be used as an option for their theatrical review, which is a core part of their final examination.

The cost of the trip will be £21.50 which covers the price of the ticket at a reduced rate because we are a school party. Travel to the theatre and back to school will be provided free of charge.

As we will be seated with members of the general public watching live theatre I would urge you to help me in reminding students about our expectations of behaviour in the theatre. Use of mobile phones or distracting behaviour such as talking during the performance will not be tolerated by theatre staff and could result in offenders being asked to leave the theatre during the performance. Any incidents such as these will also be followed up in-line with the school's attitude to learning policy.

Payment for this trip needs to be made in the form of cash/cheque only which is brought to the Student Window. Students will then be issued with a receipt. No payment should be given to Miss Cusack/Mr Raw or form tutors.
